

May 2022: Nearly there!

More progress made

Following a long interruption caused by some atrocious weather, considerable progress was made this month in preparing for the installation of the shed.

The ground was so waterlogged, they had to cart away three truck loads of very squooshy mud before they could even start forming up the embankments and slopes. But eventually the drainage was sorted (see the photo on the left above) and the driveway and paths were concreted (photo on right above).

Stop press: shed kit

We have all heard about the "supply chain delays" that have become so widespread in the construction industry as well as everywhere else. They have been blamed for the late delivery of our shed kit.

The good news is that it looks as if we are finally getting through. Most of the shed kit has now been delivered to the building site. As soon as the small number of remaining parts have been delivered, hopefully within the next couple of weeks, it will be possible to erect the shed and begin to fit it out.

So keep your eye on the construction site - we are nearly there!
